

Donations

1. Donations

Ho hum, so this is where I get to beg for cash. Here are the reasons I think you should donate!

- Really, I'd just like to say that: Go on, you know you want to :-)
- Good karma! I will personally send you good vibes in proportion to the size of the donation forever, and even after that, too.
- Does this cheekiness help - Support requests will be handled on a probably adhoc basis. A donation might help change my priorities?

1.1. A Few Words From Janne (My Wife :-))

Donations might persuade my wife of the benefits of open source software as she is currently very much against the whole idea. So now, without further ado, a few words from her:

I just really want to emphasize that this software was written in a flat where mushrooms grow freely and sunlight is scarce. Please show your grattitude so that Hugh can keep on doing what he is doing, as well as keeping me in mushroom fighting agents. I must admit to not being entirely convinced by my husband's generosity, but I do respect his integrity and understand the ideology behind open source code. Ideology aside, we need to make a living so if you feel you should donate, than just do it.

Gulp. Well if that doesn't work then you probably didn't cry at Bambi!
